ANOTHER PRIZE

THE LIGHT ARTILLERY WILL DRILL AT SAVANNAH.

An Addition of $600 Made to the First Prize to Secure the Presence of the Champions.

The Indianapolis Light Artillery left last night for Savannah, Ga., to participate in the drill at that point. The artillery prize which was offered there is so small that the battery at first declined to enter, but the management, recognizing the importance of having the organization with them, added 3600 as a special inducement. The members of the organization who went South are: Capt. J. B. Curtis, Lieutenant Charles A. Garrard, Sergeants Harry Callon, Smith Strickland, Edward H. Miller, William E. Meyers, Johnson C. Holmes, privates Edward Hicks, James F. Boswell, George Schad, R. T. Oliver and W. D. Mayhew. They will be accompanied by Dr. C. E. Cary, who will look after the medical wants of the drill team during its absence. The party expects to be gone just a week and will leave Savannah next Saturday morning, arriving home some time Sunday. The battery has made very hard preparation for this drill in the last few days, but in a quiet way, because it was uncertain whether a number of the members could get away from their business, and their going depended upon the arrangement of Captain Curtis's legal matters, especially a case which was disposed of yesterday in the federal court. Fortunately, all matters were put into shape so as to permit the departure of the organization.

The Indianapolis Light Artillery stands today as the only undisputed champions in any class of military drill in the United States. This standing has been acquired by reason of the fact that this is the twelfth year during which the organization has attended all interstate competitive drills where an artillery contest took place, and in every one succeeded in winning first prize. No other company at any time in the history of competitive drills has made a record for even half the length of time as that attained by thowing missiles at the old woman. Judge teen prizes and floats this number of ribbons

Artillery was held in the reading room of the Denison Hotel in August, 1882. It was attended by James B. Curtis, Harry Jackson, Harry Allen, Lew Cooper, Frederick Dietrichs, Charles Sissloff, Charles Gladding and Edward Miller. The Denison House meeting was soon followed by others, and within sixty days an entire battery was sworn into the Indiana Legion under the command of Captain George W. Johnson. With the exception of the commander, the members were all of less than twenty-three years of age. They began work with youthful enthusiasm, which they have been able to retain as the years advance.

The battery was named the Indianapolis Light Artillery. It at once secured the services of Lieutenant Hamilton, U. S. A., for an instructor. It had made such decided progress in drill by the spring of 1883 that it entered in four classes of contests at the encampment of that year. It won a prize in each class, which was a powerful incentive to the members. In the spring of 1884 the battery was chal-lenged by the Cincinnati Light Artillery. The neeting took place at Richmond, where a clean-cut victory was scored, the Cincinnati artillerymen falling behind 20 per cent. Just after the drill Captain Johnson resigned. He was succeeded by Lieutenant

Curtis, who had begun as a private and been promoted. Lieutenant Curtis had com-manded "the team" in all the victorious drills; so he naturally enough took the cap-An effort for an armory was at once put on foot, which resulted in one being com-pleted in March, 1885. Work was begun for the great Southern drills in May. After six weeks of preparation the battery went to Mobile to compete with all the famous artillery organizations of the country. There it met its first reverse owing to an unfortu-nate accident. After the drill was more than two-thirds completed it was found that the cartridges were too large and the cannon could not be loaded. The battery went to New Orleans the following week, where it met all its Mobile competitors, in addition to others. The famous New Orleans batterles were at their best, and had ilttle fear of the result. They were doomed to disappointment, as Indian-apolis was given the first prize, and Captain Curtis the beautiful Cotton Centennial championship medal. In July the battery went to the Philadelphia drill, where the mismanagement ruined what might have been a successful affair. The management promised "calssons," but forced the battery to drill without one, but furnished one to other batteries. Notwithanding this disadvantage, second prize was on against a field of eight competitors. In 1886 the Light Artillery entered three drills at the Lafayette encampment and won first prize in each. Perhaps no other company ever made a similar record in one week. In 1887 the great national encampment at Washington was announced. The men had been looking forward to a visit to the capital and were naturally enthusiastic, but had their ardor dampened when informed that the drill would be a mounted platoon. The battery had no horses, but was soon at work, and appeared upon the drill field at Washington in magnificent condition. It carried the day and received first prize from the hands of General Sheri-

At Nashville, in 1888, the battery again apteries of that section. The drill was one of great perfection on the part of all competitors, but victory once more perched upon Indianapolis's banner. In 1890, at Kansas City, the battery appeared in new territory and before an entirely new set of judges. Its work was so superior that it easily took first place. This closed its series of drills, in which it won thirteen prizes and never met a genuine de-

A tournament was held in Indianapolis in 1891 under the auspices of the battery, and the success of it resulted in the formation of a permanent organization. Captain Curtis had suggested this by letter to many of-ficers before their arrival here. The sugges-tion was pushed by Capt. H. B. Mulford, of the Omaha Guards. At a meeting at his headquarters, on the last day of the drill, the organization was perfected. Omaha was selected as the place for the next year's drill and Captain Mulford elected president of

In 1892 the organization again appeared in the competitive field at Omaha, and made the highest score which has been recorded in such contests, carrying off first prize. In 1893 it appeared in the great drill which was held at Little Rock, and again scored a success by carrying off first honors. Out of its prize earnings it has erected a magnificent two-story brick armory in this city. This battery has not only shown its ability to stand at the head of the list in the competitive drill field, but has, at the same time performed all the work assigned to it by the State. It has attended every State en-campment hell, and rendered forty-one days' service during the coal and railroad strikes of 1894, being on duty in Sullivan and Davies counties, where the most serious outbreaks occurred during the coal strike, and at Hammond, where the vicious element of Chicago collected during the railroad strike. At St. Louis, in 1895, the largest artillery prize ever offered, $2,000, was hung up by the It Louis Fair Association, the money being leposited in bank and certified checks issued some four months previous to the contest as an inducement to bring the best batteries in the country there. The result was an un-usual contest, as the training had been severe on the part of all the competitors, and he cry was anything to down the Indianapolis Artillery. All the other competitors had finished their drills on the Fourth of thirty minutes before the violent rainstorm set in, which quickly made in the Missouri loam a mud four inches deep. There was much joy in camp of the combined enemy, as they thought that for once they would succeed in downing the cham-pions. The board of judges decided that it was impossible for a battery to drill in such mud as was on the ground. The other companies entered a vigorous protest against any postponement until the next or succeeding days. The Indianapolis battery offered to drill any place the judges designated and did not ask any postponement, as they wanted their title, if they retained it, to the championship to be clear. As a by posts, but where there was a solid foun-dation. In this shed no air circulated, and under the most trying circumstances one of the most difficult programmes ever drilled was executed, and as a result the per cent. would have been the result. On the arrival home of the organization with the largest prize ever offered in its class, it was given a royal reception by the citizens. A few days later it performed its regular camp duties by sending a full representation to the camp of instruction, and his since kept up its perfection in drill.

In 1892, at Omaha, Captain Curtis was elected president of the National Drill Association, which office he has held ever since,

BABIES IN COURT.

Judge Cox Publicly Reprimands the Prosecuting Witness.

Mrs. Minnie Jonas, an old woman living at 20 Chadwick street, made affidavits for the arrest of three little children, Annie Toner and Alice and Willie Eggsfield. The eldest is but six and the youngest three years old. The children were not arrested. but their parents were required to have them in Police Court to answer the charge of brought before him. He called the prosecuting witness to his desk. Mrs. Jonas appeared, carrying a few small sticks which she said the children had thrown. Judge The first meeting of the Indianapolis Light | Cox reprimanded her severely, informing her artillery was held in the reading room of that the case would be dismissed by the prosecutor, saying that he thought it an outrage for anyone, especially a woman, to have bables brought into Police Court. Ac-companying Mrs. Jonas were seven neighbor women, who had come to testify against the children. They flounced out of court when the children were discharged.

JUNKETERS RETURN.

Col. Downing Thinks Creosoted Yellow Pine Best Paving Material. City Controller E. M. Johnson and Col. M. A. Downing, of the Board of Public Works, returned yesterday from their Southern trip, where they have been investigating the use of the creosote block pavement. They visited New Orleans and Galveston, Tex., and in both of these cities found extensive pavements of block which had been treated with creosote. Colonel Downing procured some of the creosote-treated blocks at Galveston and brought them home. The blocks were taken from a pavement laid in 1875. They are hard and firm, and are apparently in as good condition as when they were put down. The gentlemen were shown through the plant where the blocks are saturated with the liquid. They were told that twelve pounds of creosote is used in each cubic foot. In the South the yellow pine is most extensively used, because it yields to the treatment better and is said to outwear the ordinary red cedar or cypress. "We were greatly impressed with the durability of this kind of pavement," said Colonel Downing, "The enty question, I think, is, can we shoulder this burden on the people. I feel that the board represents the people, and we do not want to contract for some thing they do not want to contract for some-thing they do not want. For myself, I am disposed to buy the yollow pine if we have the creosote treatment. It will cost from 75 cents to $1 a front foot more than the other, but I am convinced that if it is treated prop-erly it will last from twenty-five to thirty years."

The Board of Public Works has proposed to pave Illinois street, from Seventh to Seventeenth street, with blocks, and Vermont, dichigan and North streets, from East to West streets, with the same material. The most serious trouble which now confronts the board is the fact that specifications on which bids were recently furnished called for red cedar or cypress. Since his Southern investigations Colonel Downing is in favor of using the yellow pine if the blocks are to be treated, and it is likely the specifications will have to be seed to be treated. to be treated, and it is likely the specifications will have to be readvertised and bids submitted again. Controller Johnson was equally impressed with the beauty and durability of these creosote-treated pavements, and he, too, is in favor of the yellow pine. "However, we will do nothing until this question has been thoroughly discussed," said Colonel Downing, "for we want everybody to be satisfied. If the people living on the streets which it is contemplated to imthe streets which it is contemplated to improve feel that they can stand the expense, I think the yellow pine is the thing. The board will probably have a conference on the ques-tion early next week."

Mr. Leedy Resigns.

William M. Leedy yesterday tendered his resignation to the Mayor as a member of the Board of City Park Commissioners, Mr. Leedy states that he has not the time to look after his duties as a member of the commission. Mayor Taggart says he has no one in mind for the place.

Martindale Lost.

During the early ballots at the State convention, when the finger of fate seemed to be pointing toward Posey, Mr. Charles Martindale predicted his nomination. A friend standing near offered to wager a bottle of wine he would not be. With characteristic promptness Mr. Martindale replied, "I'll take you." Of course he lost the bet, and accompanying the bottle of champagne was the Bryn Mawr Examination. Miss Emma Louise Atkins, who graduated from the Girls' Classical School in 1889, and from Bryn Mawr College in 1894, has been appointed by the college to take charge of the entrance examinations of candidates in this city and vicinity who wish to enter Bryn Hawr in the autumn. Miss Atkins has arranged to hold the examinations in a room at the Propylaeum. Candidates for such examinations may make preliminary arrangements for them by communicating with Miss Atkins, at her city address, 666 North Meridian street. It was owing to the fact that the Girls' Classical School sent so many of its graduates to Bryn Mawr College that a local examiner was appointed at this place. Prior to her marriage Miss Eliza Raymond Adams, now Mrs. Lewis, of Philadelphia, held the position of local examiner.

The State Board of Education will meet battery was again awarded first prize, leading all competitors by some ten points. It was confidently thought by friends of the organization that had it been possible for it to drill under the same circumstances as its competitors, a clean-cut score of 100 a decrease of not less than 50,000.

William May Thought to Be an All-Round Hotel Thief.

William May, the man arrested at the Grand Hotel, Friday, while going through the cloak room, was given a preliminary hearing in Police Court yesterday and sent to the grand jury under $1,000 bonds. The an effort will be made to learn something of his past history. A Chicago commercial traveler, who was a guest at the hotel, identified part of the money found when May was searched at the station house, as being money stolen from his room. Humphreys' Homoeopathic Specifics Cure The Sick.

Ask your druggist for the Speof rain in April, and there has been no rain in the present month. The dry weather, it is said, has brought an army of chinch bugs and cutworms. The weather officials can give no encouragement.

Ask your druggist for the Specific you need, get well and strong for a quarter. It is a small investment, but means much to you. Manual of all Diseases mailed free.

> Small bottles of pleasant pellets, fit the vest pocket. Sold by druggists, or sent prepaid upon receipt of price, 25 cents. HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE COM-
